

IRISH CULTURAL CENTER McCLELLAND LIBRARY

<http://azirishlibrary.org/>

Genealogy research services are located on the second floor with how-to books, source books for Irish genealogical research, and Irish periodicals for researching your family. There are books on the various Irish counties and records of their citizens through time. The staff will offer help in researching your Irish ancestors. Genealogy classes offered.

The library has access to Ancestry.com. Computer screens are large making viewing easy and comfortable.

The three-story building houses 5,000 books from Irish authors and poets and genealogical research tools. It includes an on-going exhibit of The Book of Kells plus several reading rooms and computer resources to access the library catalog and databases. The three-story building resembles a traditional 12th century Norman castle from the Emerald Isle.

The McClelland Library is an affiliate of the Phoenix Public Library (PPL) and holdings can be accessed through their Public Access Catalog:

ARIZONA GENEALOGICAL SOCIETIES

Joining a local genealogy group may provide the help you need to get around roadblocks or to share your genealogical information with others.

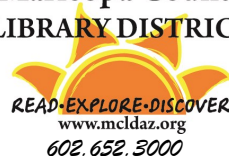

The Arizona Genealogical Advisory Board (AZGAB) is a statewide non-profit organization whose mission is to "facilitate education and communication among organizations and individuals who are dedicated to the promotion of genealogy and history".

The group's website offers information about Arizona genealogical societies as well as links to helpful websites.
